How Members of Local Authorities are Elected

1. Structure and membership of local authorities

Following the 2014 local elections there will be 31 local authorities in Ireland with 949 elected members as follows:

	31 Local Authorities	949 Members
County Councils	26	765
City Councils	3	112
City and County Councils	2	72

County Councils are responsible for local government in 26 administrative counties (covering 24 geographical counties including the county of Dublin which is divided into three administrative counties).

City Councils are responsible for local government in the cities of Dublin, Cork and Galway.

City and County Councils will be responsible for local government in the combined areas of Limerick City and County and Waterford City and County.

2. Eligibility for election

Every person who is a citizen of Ireland or ordinarily resident in the State and has reached the age of 18 years and is not subject to any of the following disqualifications is eligible for election or co-option to and membership of a local authority:

Disqualifications

- a member of the Commission of the European Communities;
- a member of the European Parliament;
- a Judge, Advocate General or Registrar of the Court of Justice of the European Communities;
- a member of the Court of Auditors of the European Communities;
- a member of Dáil Éireann or Seanad Éireann;
- a Judge or the Comptroller and Auditor General appointed under the Constitution;
- a member of the Garda Síochána or a wholetime member of the Defence Forces;
- a civil servant who is not by terms of employment expressly permitted to be a member of a local authority;
- a person employed by a local authority and is not the holder of a class, description or grade of employment designated by order under section 161(1)(b) of the Local Government Act 2001;

- a person who is convicted of, or has had a conviction confirmed on appeal for, an offence relating to any of the following –
 - (i) fraudulent or dishonest dealings affecting a local authority,
 - (ii) corrupt practice,
 - (iii) acting when disqualified.

3. Who can vote at a local election?

There are over 3 million local government electors. Generally, every person over 18 years of age is entitled to be registered as a local government elector for the electoral area where the person ordinarily resides. Citizenship is not a requirement for voting at a local election.

4. Register of Electors

A register of electors is compiled each year by county and city councils. Everybody on the register is entitled to vote at a local election. Persons identified by the letter "L" opposite their names can only vote at a local election. A draft of the register is published on 1 November each year and is displayed for public inspection in post offices, libraries, other public buildings and on-line on the county or city council's website. A person can lodge a claim for correction in the draft register up to 25 November. Claims are adjudicated on by the county registrar, whose decision may be appealed to the Circuit Court. The register of electors comes into force on 15 February. Persons who are not on the register can make "late" applications for inclusion in a supplement to the register which is published prior to polling day at an election. An application may be made at any time but in order to be considered for inclusion in the supplement to be published at an election, the application must be received by the county/city council at least 15 working days before polling day. For persons who wish to be included in the postal and special voters supplement to be published at an election, the application must be received by the county/city council at least 22 working days before polling day.

5. Voting arrangements

Generally, electors vote in person at their local polling station.

Postal voting is available to members of the Garda Síochána, Defence Forces and civil servants (and their spouses / civil partners) attached to Irish missions abroad, as well as to electors living at home who are unable to vote at a polling station due to a physical illness or physical disability and electors unable to vote at their polling station due to circumstances of their detention in a prison pursuant to an order of the court. A person employed by a returning officer on polling day in a local electoral area other than where they are registered to vote may apply for entry on the supplement to the postal voters list.

A form of postal voting is also available to electors whose occupations are likely to prevent them from voting at their local polling station (including full-time students registered at home who are living elsewhere while attending an educational institution in the State). Under this arrangement, a ballot paper is posted to the elector at home who must arrange to have their declaration of identity witnessed by a Garda before marking the ballot paper and returning it by post to the returning officer.

Special voting is available to electors living in a hospital, nursing home or similar institution who are unable to vote at a polling station due to a physical illness or physical disability. The ballot paper is brought to them in the hospital etc. and they vote in the presence of a special presiding officer accompanied by a Garda.

Electors with physical disabilities who have difficulty in gaining access to their local polling station may be authorised to vote at a more accessible station in the constituency.

6. When are local elections held?

Local elections are generally held every five years in the month of May or June. The actual polling day, which is the same in all areas, is fixed by order of the Minister for the Environment, Community and Local Government. The Minister also fixes the polling period which must last at least twelve hours between 7.00 a.m. and 10.30 p.m. However, in the event of weather or transport difficulties, polling on islands may take place in advance of polling day and the polling period may be reduced to four hours.

7. How is the election organised?

Responsibility for conducting the election to each local authority rests with the local authority returning officer. The cost of running the election is met by the local authority.

Local authorities are divided into two or more local electoral areas and an election is held in respect of each local electoral area for the number of council members assigned to that area. Elections will be held in respect of 137 local electoral areas in 2014.

8. Nomination of candidates

The period (a week) for nominating candidates to stand at local election occurs four weeks before polling day. A person may nominate him/herself or may be nominated by a local government elector registered in the area concerned. A person can be nominated to stand in more than one area. A nomination form from a candidate of a registered political party must have a certificate of political affiliation attached. If no certificate is attached, one or other of the following procedures must be complied with before the expiration of the time for receiving nominations:

- the completion of statutory declarations by 15 assentors registered as local electors in the electoral area concerned which must be witnessed by a Commissioner for Oaths, a Peace Commissioner, a Notary Public, a member of the Garda Síochána or an official of the registration authority, or

- the candidate, or someone on his/her behalf, lodging with the relevant returning officer a deposit of €100.

A candidate may include party affiliation on the nomination paper. If the candidate has no party affiliation, the person may be described as "Non-Party" or may leave the appropriate space blank.

The candidate or proposer is responsible for ensuring that the completed nomination paper is delivered to the returning officer before the closing time for receipt of nominations at the election.

The returning officer must rule on the validity of a nomination paper within one hour of its presentation and may rule that it is invalid if:

- the nomination paper of any candidate is not properly made out or signed; or

- in the case of a nomination paper of a candidate who is not a member of a political party and who has opted to be nominated by way of assentors, the nomination is not assented to in the manner required.

9. The Poll

The local authority may decide whether or not to issue polling information cards to each elector. This card indicates the date of poll, the time of the poll, the elector's number on the register and the polling station at which the elector may vote. The returning officer also sends a ballot paper by post to each postal voter and arranges to have ballot papers brought to electors with physical disabilities registered on the special voters list.

Polling places are appointed by county/city councils. The returning officer provides polling stations at each polling place. Usually schools or other public buildings are used. Each polling station is supervised on polling day by a presiding officer assisted by a polling clerk. A candidate may be represented at a polling station by an agent who assists in the prevention of electoral offences.

10. Voting

The polls at contested local elections are conducted using the PR-STV system (proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote).

On polling day, the elector applies for a ballot paper in the polling station by stating his or her name and address. The elector may be required to produce evidence of identity and, if they fail to do so, will not be permitted to vote.

The following documents are acceptable for identification purposes:

- (i) a passport;
- (ii) a driving licence;
- (iii) an employee identity card containing a photograph;
- (iv) a student identity card issued by an educational institution and containing a photograph;

- (v) a travel document containing name and photograph;
- (vi) a Bank or Savings or Credit Union book containing address in constituency;
- (vii) a Public Services Card;
- (viii) a Temporary Residence Certificate;
- (ix) a Garda National Immigration Bureau Card;

or the following items accompanied by a further document which establishes the address of the holder in the constituency

- (x) a cheque book;
- (xi) a cheque card;
- (xii) a credit card;
- (xiii) a birth certificate;
- (xiv) a marriage certificate.

Where the presiding officer is satisfied as to the elector's identity, a ballot paper is stamped with an official mark and handed to the elector.

The elector votes in secret in a voting compartment. The names of the candidates appear in alphabetical order on the ballot paper, together with their photograph, political affiliation and party emblem, if any. The voter indicates the order of their choice by writing 1 opposite the name of their first choice, 2 opposite the name of their second choice, 3 opposite the name of their third choice and so on. In this way the voter instructs the returning officer to transfer the vote to the second choice candidate if the first choice is either elected or eliminated. If the same situation applies to the second choice, the vote may be transferred to the third choice and so on. The voter folds the ballot paper to conceal how it has been marked and places it in a sealed ballot box. A person may only vote once at the election.

Persons with a visual impairment or a physical disability or a person with literacy difficulties may be assisted by the presiding officer or by a companion.

The presiding officer may order the arrest of any person suspected of committing an electoral offence.

11. The Count

Counting arrangements:

All ballot boxes are taken to a central counting place for each local authority. Agents of the candidates are permitted to attend at the counting place to oversee the counting process. Before the counting of votes begins, the envelopes containing the postal and special voters' ballot papers are opened in the presence of the agents of the candidates and the ballot papers are associated with the other ballot papers for the local authority.

The count commences at 9 a.m. on the day after polling day. Each ballot box is opened and the number of ballot papers checked against a return furnished by each presiding officer. They are then thoroughly mixed and sorted according to the first preferences recorded for each candidate, invalid papers being rejected.

Quota:

The quota is the minimum number of votes necessary to guarantee the election of a candidate. It is ascertained by dividing the total number of valid ballot papers by one more than the number of seats to be filled and adding one to the result. Thus, if there were 40,000 valid papers and 4 seats to be filled, the quota would be 8,001. It will be seen that in this example only four candidates (the number to be elected) could possibly reach the quota.

Transfer of Surplus:

At the end of the first count any candidate who has received a number of votes equal to or greater than the quota is deemed to be elected. If a candidate receives more than the quota, the surplus votes are transferred proportionately to the remaining candidates in the following way. If the candidate's votes are all first preference votes, all his or her ballot papers are sorted into separate parcels according to the next preference shown on them. A separate parcel is made of the non-transferable papers (papers on which an effective subsequent preference is not shown). If the surplus is equal to or greater than the number of transferable votes, each remaining candidate will receive all the votes from the appropriate parcel of transferable papers. If the surplus is less than the number of transferable papers each remaining candidate will receive from the appropriate parcel of transferable papers a number of votes calculated as follows: -

$$\frac{\text{Surplus x number of papers in parcel}}{\text{Total number of transferable papers}}$$

If the surplus arises out of transferred papers, only the papers in the parcel last transferred to that candidate are examined and this parcel is then treated in the same way as a surplus consisting of first preference votes. If two or more candidates exceed the quota, the larger surplus is distributed first.

Elimination of Candidate:

If no candidate has a surplus or the surplus is insufficient to elect one of the remaining candidates or materially affect the progress of the count, the lowest of the remaining candidates is eliminated and his or her papers are transferred to remaining candidates according to the next preference indicated on them. If a ballot paper is to be transferred and the second preference shown on it is for a candidate already elected or eliminated, the vote passes to the third choice and so on.

Completion of Counting:

Counting continues until all the seats have been filled. If the number of seats left to be filled is equal to the number of candidates still in the running, those remaining candidates are declared elected without having reached the quota.

Recount:

A returning officer may recount all or any of the papers at any stage of a count. A candidate or the election agent of a candidate is entitled to ask for a recount of the papers dealt with at a particular count or to ask for one complete recount of all the parcels of ballot papers. When recounting, the order of the papers must not be disturbed. When a significant error is discovered, the papers must be counted afresh from the point at which the error occurred.

12. Results of the election

When the count is completed, the returning officer declares and gives public notice of the results of the election and returns the names of the elected members to the local authority concerned.

If a candidate has been elected as a member in more than one electoral area, they must, within three days of the public notice of the results, declare in writing which area they wish to represent. Consequential vacancies are treated as casual vacancies.

13. Court petition

Any person aged 18 or over may question the outcome of a local election by way of petition in the Circuit Court within 28 days of the declaration of the results. The election may be questioned on grounds of want of qualification, obstruction of or interference with or other hindrance to the conduct of the election, or mistake or other irregularity. The Circuit Court, at the trial of an election petition, must determine the correct result of the election and, for this purpose, may order the votes to be recounted. The Court may declare the whole or part of the election in the constituency void and, in that event, a fresh election will be held to fill the vacant seats.

14. Chairman/Mayor

Local authorities or municipal district members (following the 2014 local elections in the case of the latter) elect, at every annual meeting, a member to the office of Chairman or Cathaoirleach (described as a Mayor or Lord Mayor in certain cases) of the authority or of the municipal district members. The Chairman presides at all meetings of the council or municipal district members.

15. Casual Vacancies

Casual vacancies arising in the membership of elected local authorities are filled by co-option by the authority concerned. The co-opted member holds the seat until the next election under the same conditions as elected councillors.

16. Expenditure & Donations

The Local Elections (Disclosure of Donations and Expenditure) Act 1999 sets out legal requirements on the acceptance of political donations and on election expenditure that apply to local authority members, political parties, third parties and local election candidates.

Expenditure

Spending limits, first introduced for the 2009 local elections, were revised by the Local Government Reform Act 2014. The limit depends on the population of the local electoral area.

Local electoral area	Candidate spending limit
Population in excess of 35,000	€13,000
Population between 18,001 and 35,000	€11,500
Population of 18,000 or less	€9,750

Candidates nominated by a political party are deemed to automatically allocate 10% of their spending limit to the party's national agent. For example, a party candidate with a limit of €13,000 would be deemed to automatically allocate €1,300 for use by the party. Their effective limit would therefore be €11,700. The 10% figure can be varied upwards or downwards by written agreement between the candidate and national agent.

Election spending incurred during a period before the election must be reported to the local authority concerned and must be below the specified limit. The date of commencement of the spending period is set out in an order made by the Minister before the election and must commence between 50 and 60 days before polling day. Each candidate must submit a statement of their expenses within 90 days of polling day.

Donations

The maximum amount that can be accepted in the same calendar year by a member of a local authority or by a local election candidate from the same source is €1,000. Details of donations which exceed €600 must be disclosed in a statement made to the local authority. A candidate or member of a local authority that receives a monetary donation that exceeds €100 must open and maintain a political donations account in a financial institution.

Certain donations are restricted. It is prohibited to accept a donation from an anonymous source which exceeds €100. Donations in cash which exceed €200 are also prohibited. There are specific rules covering corporate donations which exceed €200 – the donor must be registered with the Standards in Public Office Commission and evidence that the donation was approved by the corporate body must be provided.

17. Local Electoral Law

The law governing local elections is contained mainly in the following legal provisions, as amended:

- Local Elections (Petitions and Disqualifications) Act 1974
- Electoral Act 1992
- Local Elections Regulations 1995
- Electoral (Amendment) Act 1996
